Paris Women Wear Two Kinds of Suits

Two kinds of suits are worn in Paris at the present time, morning suits, for walking on the Bois de Boulogne, and afternoon suits, writes a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune. The former have the short English coat with vest, while the afternoon suit is occasionally ornamented with embroidery or bands of fur and usually is accompanied by a blouse which hangs loosely from the shoulders.

The three piece suit takes two forms being either quite simple or very dressy. This is frequently worn to replace the tailored suit or the afternoon dress. Short ruffles are attached to the jackets of some of these suits.

As to color, a French hint unique in tone is a background for yellow, blond, rosewood, beige and brown, all of which colors are returning in profusion. Black has disappeared.

The pendulum of fashion, having swung away from black, now swings to very bright shades of green, such as jade and emerald. All the green tones are extremely popular at the present time. Water green in particular is considered very smart as is the shade known as bottle-green. Not only is this color seen in fabrics but in jewelry and trimmings. The newest girdles worn on both afternoon and evening dresses are studded with imitation emeralds of cut jade.

In the Pines.
Awake in the stillness of the country, with quiet meadows, white in the moonlight, stretching beyond your garden gate, you hear the approach of the wind as he sweeps your pine trees to sing with him; for the wind cannot stop; he sweeps a line through which to sweep his mightiest and his gentlest songs.

It is not a rattle, as with poplars, but a swift swishing sound, at first hardly more than the breathing of a child, but rising to a powerful crescendo as the bushes follow under the mighty sweep of the wind.

A few moments and the hush follows, that wonderful vanishing point of sound, unattained by the greatest artist. So gentle is the subsiding that you hardly know when the wind left, but the pines are straight and still again, and the wind is a mile away, stirring the hawthorn buds on the hill and dragging out their fragrance into the moonlight.

Tricks in All Trades.
The jeweler was showing an out-of-town customer around. There was an attractive girl behind the counter and the proprietor explained that it was her particular task to look after hushful swains who came in to purchase engagement rings. Also he related a number of anecdotes about the same timorous swains.

The visitor thought the arrangement a good one. "Then she helps business in engagement rings?" "Very much. We're a big one here."

Moderation Always Best.
For aught I see they are as sick that surfeit with too much, as they that starve with nothing; it is no mean happiness therefore to be seated in the mean; superfluity comes sooner by white hairs, but competency lives longer.—Shakespeare.

There is no magic in the accumulation of money

MANY people look upon capital as something that belongs to the other man, which he acquires in a mysterious way that they do not understand.

If they would inquire, they would discover that most people who have money got it by saving it. For one who gets rich through some lucky stroke of fortune, there are hundreds who accumulate money steadily and certainly by saving systematically.

There is no reason why you cannot have a bank account steadily increasing to hundreds of dollars. It requires only your determination to start and keep on saving.

You can open an account with this bank for deposits of one dollar or more.

SUNSET IN ARABIAN DESERT

Scene of Remarkable Beauty Under the Glowing Moon and the Silver Stars

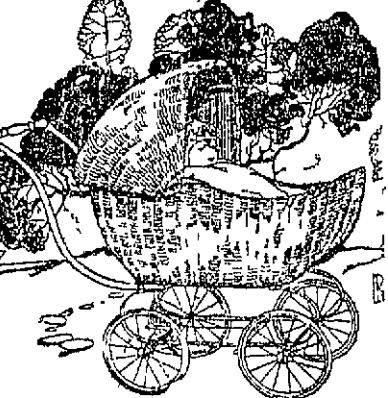

There is no twilight in the desert. One moment the sun rides high in the heavens; the next it dies in brief few moments of rapidly afterglow and then one bound comes the dark. One by one, the stars appear, as when the lights are turned on at nightfall in a city. Until the purple velvet sky is cut across by a broad swath of silver dust, the Milky Way. And so we would fall asleep lulled by the murmur of the Arab voices and the grumbling of the camels.

Above us a moon that looked like an enormous silver plate and the stars very near. It is usually late before the camp falls asleep. The fires die down to beds of glowing embers. The night wind rises and I draw my blankets about me more closely. I can discern the dim outlines of the camels tethered outside the zebra walls. A sentry rifle on a stand, pointed to the eyes in his aback, moves past on noiseless feet. A jackal howls in the darkness. Something rustles in the tall grass—a snake or a lizard or a cat. The moon transforms the yellow desert into a lake of molten amber. Over everything a magic silence falls.—E. Alexander Powell in the Century Magazine.

Women Compared With Clocks. Women are like clocks. Some of them are fully reliable with but little attention, while others need almost constant care and it is not always the high priced, jeweled ones that are most dependable. They may have pretty hands, pretty faces and pretty movements but they are liable to get out of order and when they do they are all very hard to reset.

This is one of the many winsome new Egyptian prints. The Egyptian influence also will be noted on the bag.

Ringed Changed on Death.

The death was announced the other day of a gentleman who, the son of James Death, had changed his name to D'Aeth. That is an unusual variation of a name which one would not willingly choose, though the old family of the D'Aeths of Knowlton Court, Kent, claim that the surname is derived from Aeth, in Plandors. The directory reveals many efforts to disguise the melancholy association, including Deaths, Deaths, De Aeth and DeAeth.

Improved Appearance.

When Kenneth saw his brother to rumper for the first time he appeared greatly astonished and finally announced in a highly pleased manner that "the baby don't look like a baby any more—he looks like a child."

What is a Mare's Nest?

Certainly "mare" in this case has nothing to do with the horse. It is a corruption of "mare," a malevolent demon who according to tradition, possessed a nest filled with wonderful jewels and gold.

Decision Will Be Popular.

According to a recent court decision a woman need not pay for her photographs if she is not pleased with them, no matter if a dozen of her friends declare that they "look just like her."

Wealth in the Mind.

It is the mind that makes us rich and happy, in what condition never we are, and money signifies no more to it than it does to the gods.—Seneca.

People Must Be Informed.

A popular government without popular information or the means of acquiring it is but a prologue to a farce or a tragedy.—James Madison.

How Birds Dive After Prey.

Many people think that birds dive directly on to the fish they wish to capture, but if they did so they would probably be killed. Nearly all diving birds enter the water some distance from their prey, and capture them on the upward glide, and not as they go down.

Beaver Falls Visitor Drego Enthusiast

Public About This Wonderful Glad of Opportunity to Test Medicines.

After it had helped her daughter in Sharon, Mrs. Kline upon her arrival at the home of her daughter in Beaver Falls, found that there was another home where DREGO was needed. So she got this wonderful medicine for her daughter and the result was a good judgment.

"My daughter in Sharon, whose system was run down completely started taking DREGO and it benefited her very much," says Mrs. Kline.

"When I arrived in Beaver Falls and saw that my daughter here was run down I immediately thought of DREGO."

"I know what it will do and have confidence built on experience that it is a tonic for run down systems there is no better medicine than DREGO."

"I am glad to be able to tell the public about this wonderful remedy."

People who are run down, tired out, debilitated no matter what the cause, are advised to try this little test. Get from any well stocked drug store a bottle of DREGO. Take a spoonful with each meal for a few days and watch how the change works, through the whole body. The appetite increases, everything you eat seems to taste better, there is no harmony and the rich red blood goes coursing through the veins. This is what hundreds of men and women of this section say DREGO has done for them. Isn't it reasonable to expect it to do the same for you?

DREGO is being specially introduced by the Connellsville Drug Co. Call on them and they will gladly tell you of the merits of this wonderful remedy.—Advertisement.

Styles in Headgear Include Floral Trim

Each week now in Paris brings its full quota of new spring bonnets.

Generally speaking, preferences for floral trim is given to hat, many pointed silk flowers suitable for application, although novelties in kid, lacquered velours, in metal and in stiff laced silks are in the market.

In ribbons, everything from the narrowest also string type to ribbon in eight or twelve-inch widths is in vogue in plain weaves, in fancy weaves, in changeable effects, and embroidered, printed or scalloped.

Trimming for the most part meander along at their own sweet will at the front, and the back, at the sides, under the brim, at the top of the brim, at the base or at the top of the crown, according to the shape of the hat and the caprice of the milliner.

Brim for the most part are very large in line this season, and are cut, pleated, notched, rolled or dropped, and sometimes wide at front and short at the back, and sometimes the reverse; namely, wide at the back and short across the front and sides. The basic principle of construction is, however, for a line short at the back and wide at the front.

Crowns still show a surprising determination to rise to untold—no any case to unbending—heights, but hand in hand with these new high-crowned shapes are shapes with soft, supple, slightly notched crowns just deep enough to take care of the top of the head.

In colors, bright emerald green, soft shades of dull blue Persian greens and bright gentian blue make their bow as the latest novelty shades, while black, shell and blond, alone and in combination, still represent the popular demand. Black hats with a multi-colored trim and hats in a two-tone combination—a light and a dark shade of the same color—are both conspicuous.

There is still a pronounced feeling for metal used for brim facings or for metal used on straw or fabric hats.—Paris Letter to the Dry Goods Economist.

Co-Operative Distribution Club 2000 PIANOS and PLAYER-PIANOS

Five of the World's Most Famous Makes to Choose From

HOW WE SHARE PROFITS WITH YOU

The W. F. Frederick Co-operative plan goes farther than to merely pass along factory concessions, and saving, but affords a still greater advantage in money, safety and convenience. A protective piano bond, and unusually liberal terms of purchase and payment.

Many months ago Mr. W. F. Frederick sensing an inevitable advance in the cost of the material from which better grade pianos are made concluded an arrangement for the purchase of 2000 instruments of regular styles and specifications, to be delivered in May, June, July and August.

In part these savings result from—but one factory selling expense on one order equal to from 100 to 500 average orders, the elimination of traveling salesman's expenses—hotel bill, salaries, postage, no credit risk which in itself warrants a liberal discount through removing one of the chief hazards of business, and other possible savings in manufacturing and selling that justified the granting of unusual concessions by the manufacturer.

PLAYER PIANOS

$497 Upward

Terms Arranged as Low as $2.25 Weekly

By comparing the prices at which the identical styles we offer are sold in the manufacturer's own retail warerooms you will note a definite saving on each style of $103 to $153. This saving is up to you. You save $103 by paying a good down payment the saving can be as much as $157.

THE CO-OPERATIVE DISTRIBUTION PLAN

The spirit of this distribution is to yield the largest savings possible in money to you and 1,999 other purchasers, who by co-operating and buying within a short and definite period of time, make possible very great concessions and discounts from manufacturer to us, and from us to you.

The product represents a business life time of earnest effort and success in attaining an unusually high degree of perfection in piano building.

Each instrument is sold under a bond secured by a million dollars of more in resources and a reputation for business integrity extending over a period of a third of a century.

Because of the low prices offered, we must limit the number of instruments to be sold. We have arranged to sell 800 Upright Pianos, 800 Player-Pianos and 400 Baby Grand Pianos at these low prices. As soon as these are disposed of this Club will be closed.

30 to 36 Full Months Time to Pay

TERMS: First we quote a price for each piano, then on the basis of this price we make a series of payments in small regular weekly or bi-weekly amounts. While the club is in progress he has the use of the piano or player and a very little more than an ordinary rental.

Ordinary Buyers Do Not Enjoy These Features

CASH BONUS

Included in the special privilege is the BIG CASH BONUS. We make it equally fair to all by opening it up to all alike. The amount of cash any member of the CLUB pays over and above the first small payment on any instrument included in the club will be immediately credited with 50 per cent additional up to $100. If it is $10 additional we credit $75 and if it is $100 we credit $150.

EXAMPLE—If it is the GRAND the regular terms are $17 down and $15 per month. If the Club member pays $117 in cash he immediately gets receipt for $167. This makes the GRAND PIANO cost him only $197 in actual money. On each PIANO by paying $100 above the regular terms—without considering the actual saving of $103 on the price of the instrument in the first place, you still save $50 by earning this as a bonus for the excess cash paid. If you wish to pay all cash you also earn a CASH DIVIDEND on the unpaid balance after earning the CASH BONUS.

Guaranty

We hereby guarantee to the manufacturer of the best materials and by the most skilled workmen. Should any defect in workmanship and materials not caused by improper treatment or by exposure to extreme heat, cold, dampness or other conditions within ten years from date of its manufacture we will repair or replace the piano or player at our expense without cost or charge to you.

THE LIGHT OF WESTERN STARS

A Romance

by Zane Grey

Illustrations by IRWIN MYERS

Quietly Madeline arose, with a gasp to the dogs, and went back along the trail toward camp. Succeeding her success was a feeling of sorrow that Stewart's regeneration had not been complete. Sorrow gave place to indifference, distrust that while she had been romancing about this cowboy, dreaming of her good life, she had been living a life of a horse's boots. The sun had set, but the park was light. Nels appeared down the trail, and his horse was running. In another moment he was in the circle, putting his bay back to a sliding halt. He leaped off ahead of Stewart.

"What's up, Gene?" he queried, sharply.

Nels' long arm shot out, and his hand fell upon Stewart, holding him down.

"Shore I'm sorry," said Nels, slowly. "Then you was going to hit the trail?"

"I am going to. Let go, Nels."

"Shore you ain't going, Gene?"

"Let go, d—n you!" ended Stewart, as he wrestled free.

"What's wrong?" asked Nels, lifting his hand again.

"Man! Don't touch me!"

Nels stepped back instantly. He seemed to become aware of Stewart's white, wild passion. Again Stewart moved to mount.

"Nels, don't make me forget we've been friends," he said.

"Shore I ain't forgetting," replied Nels. "An' I resent my job right here an' now."

His strange speech checked the mounting cowboy. Stewart stepped down from the stirrup. Then their hard faces were still and cold while their eyes looked glances.

Madeline was as much startled by Nels' speech as Stewart. Quick to note a change in these men, she now sensed one that was irrefragable.

"Stewart," questioned Stewart.

"Shore. What'd you think I'd do under circumstances such as has come up?"

"Just see here, Nels, I won't stand for it."

"You're not my boss no more, an' I ain't beholdin' to Miss Hammond neither. I'm my own boss, an' I'll do as I please. Shoo, son!"

Nels' words were at variance with the meaning in his face.

"Gene, you sent me on a little scout down in the mountains, didn't you?"

"Yes, I did," replied Stewart, with a new sharpness in his voice.

"Well, shore you was on good an' right in your legs, but as opposed to mine, that I'm sick with a headache of you. If you hadn't sent me out, I wouldn't be here now, an' I wouldn't be here now."

How significant was the effect of his words upon all the cowboys? Stewart made a fever and cold nod. He felt that where his other audience had been but passive, Monty had been straight up into the air in a singularly plain and suggestive of surprise as it was of wild acceptance of meaning. Like a striking giant Nels strode over to Nels and Stewart. The other cowboys were silent, without a word.

Madeline and her guests, in a little group, watched and listened, unable to divine what all this strange talk and action meant.

"Hold on, Nels, they don't need to hear it," said Stewart, honestly, as he waved a hand toward Madeline's silent group.

"Wait, I'm sorry, but I reckon they'd as well know just as fast. Maybe that yearnin' wish of Miss Helen's for something to happen, will come true. Shore I—"

"Cut out the jabberin'," rang out Monty's sudden voice.

It had as decided an effect as any preceding words or action. Perhaps it was the last thing needed to transform these men, doing unaccustomed duty as escorts of beautiful women, to their natural state as men of the wild.

gray, as usual. Maybe they want to steal a few horses, or anything they can lay hands on. Maybe they mean war, too. Now, my idea is this, an' maybe it's wrong. I long since separated from love with Greasers. That black-faced Don Carlos has got a deep game. That two-bit of a revolution is havin' hard times. The rebels want American intervention. They'd stretch any point to make trouble. We're only ten miles from the border. Suppose them greasins got our crowd across the border? The United States cavalry would follow. You know what that'd mean. Maybe Don Carlos' mind works that way. Maybe it don't. I reckon we'll know soon. An' now, Stewart, whatever the Don's game is, shore you're the man to outfigure him. Maybe it's just as well you're good an' mad about somethin'. An' I'm going to resign my job because I want to feel beholdin' to anybody. Shore it struck me long since that the old days had come back for a little spell, an' there I was takin' a promise not to hurt any Greasers."

CHAPTER XVII

Don Carlos.

Stewart took Nels, Monty and Nick Steele aside out of earshot, and they evidently entered upon an earnest colloquy. Presently the other cowboys were called. They all talked more or less, but the deep voice of Stewart predominated over the others. Then the conversation broke up, and the cowboys scattered.

"Husle, you Indians!" ordered Stewart.

The meaning some of action was not reassuring to Madeline and her friends. They were quiet, awaiting some one to tell them what to do. At the office the cowboys appeared to have forgotten a Madeline. Some of them ran off into the woods, others into the open, grassy places, where they munched up the horses and burros. Several cowboys spread tarpaulins upon the ground and began to select and roll small pipes, evidently for hurried travel. Nels mounted his horse to ride down the trail. Monty and Nick Steele went off into the grove, leading their horses. Stewart climbed up a steep bank of stone between two sections of low creek, a half mile of the camp.

Madeline's front all important here: Was there real danger? Were the greasins coming? Would a start be made at once for the ranch? Why had the cowboys suddenly become so different? Madeline answered as best she could; but her replies were only conjecture, and modified to stay the fears of her guests. Helen was in a white glow of excitement.

Soon the cowboys appeared riding back toward camp, driving in others and the burros. Some of these horses were taken away and evidently hidden in deep recesses between the crags. The string of burros were packed and sent off down the trail in charge of a cowboy. Nick Steele and Monty returned. Then Stewart appeared, clambering down the bank between the cliffs.

His next move was to order all the baggage belonging to Madeline and her guests taken up the cliff. This was a serious task, requiring the need of horses to haul up the effects.

"Get ready to climb," said Stewart, turning to Madeline's party.

"Where?" asked Helen.

"Up over the hill, an' the ascent to be made. Excursions of this kind follow his cowboys."

"Mr. Stewart, is there danger?" asked Dorothy, and her voice trembled.

This was the question Madeline had upon her lips to ask Stewart, but she could not speak it.

Stewart, there, no danger," replied Stewart, then, taking precautions, we all agreed on as best."

Dorothy whispered that she believed Stewart lied. On Helen asked another question, and then Harvey followed suit. Mrs. Deak made a third query.

"Please keep quiet and do as you're told," said Stewart, bluntly.

At this juncture, when the last of the baggage was being hauled up the cliff, Monty appeared, and he and Stewart and Nels, the black face, secured the same, yet this was a vastly changed Monty.

"Miss Hammond, I'm givin' notice I resign my job," he said.

"Monty! What do you mean? What does Nels mean now, when danger threatens?"

"We just quit. That's all," replied Monty, bravely. He was stern and resolute; he could not stand still; his eyes were everywhere.

Clint jumped up from the big where he had been sitting, and his face was very red.

"Mr. Deak, does all this blooming fuss mean we are to be killed or attacked or abducted by a lot of ragged, ragged greasins?"

"You're called the fat."

Dorothy turned a very pale face toward Monty.

"Mr. Deak, you wouldn't—you couldn't desert us now? You and Mr. Nels?"

"Desert you?" asked Monty, blankly.

Jed Ray, greatest runner of all time, is so native a cocksure of himself that he gets on your nerves. Elmer Giffman, great army star, now football coach at Union college, was almost convicted. Rainbow Division Clubs

Hope to Make Advance

Before every baseball race the clubs might be separated into two divisions. There are the first division clubs and the rainbow division clubs—rainbow signifying hope, writes Walter Trumbull in the New York Herald.

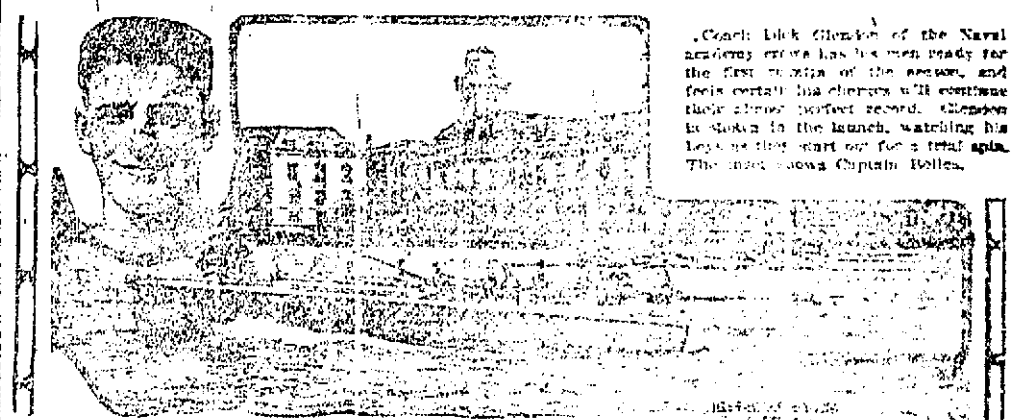

There are always clubs which have been second division teams, but which hope that they have advanced enough to climb into the first division. The only trouble about that is the first division will accommodate only four teams in each league.

To make concrete examples, both the White Sox and the Athletics this season say that they expect to finish in the first division. Fair enough! But the four narrow top steps now are occupied by New York, St. Louis, Detroit and Cleveland. Just which one do they expect to kick down stairs?

And in the National league the chances look pretty slim for any of the second division clubs to head off the Giants, Cincinnati, St. Louis or Pittsburgh. In fact, it is just as well for a couple of these second division teams that the league provides only eight places in which to finish—otherwise one of them might finish ninth.

With the exception of the Harvard Yale track team, which is slated for a meet with Oxford-Cambridge in England next July, no American will be found to all athletes under A. A. U. jurisdiction to take part in international contests abroad this year.

Connellsville Independents Open Season With Victory; Defeat Smithton Nine, 4-1

Cokers Presented With One

With Hits.

The Connellsville Independents, playing the Smithton Independents a team that is already establishing a reputation, started off on a successful season Saturday by collecting a 4-1 victory off the visitors as a result of good solid hitting.

The locals were in a bad fix in the first half of the initial inning when errors by McKelley and Patterson filled the bases with only one out but then Amy Kozar demonstrated his effectiveness and fanned the next two men to face him.

The Cokers were presented with their first tally by Gabby Floyd, an Appalachian League twister last season. He walked the first man, Korb, and then with the bases filled forced Korb home.

The first ball of the game was thrown by Mayor G. C. Mitchell and received by Fred H. Bush. The day was a beautiful one for the opener and the fans turned out en masse. The grandstand was filled, the bleachers were packed and there were many standing along the sidelines.

The game had its thrills too. The greatest of them all was turned in by a home town boy, "Hobo" Fisher. The leftfielder stopped a dangerous batting rally of Smithton in the second inning by making a flying dive into a wondrous run, and turning a somersault, landing in front of an automobile on the sidelines with the ball in his potted hand. He was given a big ovation when he walked to the dugout.

The earned runs of the Cokers came to the fifth when hits were bunched and scores forced across. In this frame the longest hit of the game, a triple by Bloom, was made, scoring Corbett home. Then Bloom crossed the rubber when Bretch started safely to right. Fisher was called out and Bretch stole second. Then Kozar singled to left and the runner scored. Korb went out at first and the frame had been completed, but the Coker victory was sewed up.

witnessed the opener from the grandstand.

The grandstand and bleachers were packed and goodly crowds swarmed along the side lines. It was an ideal day for a baseball opener. The temperature was as near perfect as one could ask.

Either the haze or the fading of the paint on the score board made it next to impossible to read the score from the grandstand. A little paint would add keeping in touch with the progress of the game.

The Robascokers of Pittsburg will play at Fayette Field next Saturday. The team is recognized as one of the best in the Pittsburg District.

Lloyd, the Smithton pitcher, started off wild and kept it up through much of the game. He passed the first batter to face him and forced in the first run. When he was "right," which was not often, he puzzled the Coker batters.

The holding feature of the game was Fisher's running catch of a long foul fly to left. Hobo raced 16 feet outside the foul line, grabbed the ball as it neared the ground and turned a somersault. He was given a great ovation.

Kozar has lost none of his effectiveness. He was in a hole in the first, though the fault was none of his. Two errors behind him resulted in the bases being filled with one out. Andy had been in just such holes in other games and pulled out. He repeated and a cheer went up when he retired the next two on strikes.
